

Information for CLAT 2021 Brochure

5-Year B.A., LL.B. (Hons.):

The 5-year integrated B.A., LL.B. (Hons.) programme is on offer for persons who have successfully completed 12 years of school education. To complete it, students are required to accumulate 200 credits through a combination of mandatory and elective courses. Foundational courses in History, Political Science, Economics, Sociology and English have to be completed within the first two years of study. In addition, students are required to earn nine credits by choosing from a vibrant list of social science seminars offered by full-time and visiting faculty members. All the law courses that the Bar Council of India (BCI) requires to be compulsorily pursued have been designated as mandatory courses. In addition to these, the University has designated 'Law and Poverty' and 'Law of Intellectual Property' as mandatory courses.

If the compulsory component of the programme is shaped by what the regulator and the university considers every student must learn; the elective part of the programme is totally driven by the choices of students. Students can design their own customised coursework by choosing among a diverse basket of elective, seminar and clinical courses. While the elective courses are largely based on the subject expertise of the faculty, the seminar courses adopt participatory methods and the clinical courses allow for more hands on learning in areas that are connected to the demands of legal practice.

Beginning with the academic year 2012-2013, the university has proactively pursued policies which have enhanced the flexibility in a Choice Based Credit System (CBCS). The University has not limited its scholastic invitations to mainstream academics but has drawn from all sources of learning across disciplines and sectors. Thus, along with courses such as 'Regulatory Governance', 'Comparative Constitutional Law' or 'Justice in the Anthropocene', courses bearing titles such as 'Learning by Performance', 'Documentaries as Evidence' and 'Toolbox for Maximum Lawyering' have also been offered in recent academic years.

In order to ensure that student choice is not hindered by scheduling decisions, the University notifies a comprehensive list of courses to students before the start of each semester and seeks their preferred combination before finalizing the schedule. This preliminary survey allows the final schedule to be made after accounting for student preferences and permits unconventional combinations to be created. While there is a minimum number of credits that need to be accumulated, there is no upper limit on what each student might eventually gather through five years of undergraduate study. The possibility of accumulating additional credits allows each student to be evaluated on their strengths as the CGPA is calculated on the best 200 credits.

Every mandatory course requires each student to undertake a certain percentage of research and writing through different kinds of assignments, which are to be submitted in a staggered manner through the semester. The assignments have been created to enable every kind of intelligence to flourish. A project bidding system allows students to choose the kind of research project they wish to undertake for each course.

The range and depth of the Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) in place at NALSAR can be appreciated from the following illustrative list of courses offered during the previous academic years:-

One year LL.M. programme:

The LL.M. programme offered at NALSAR is intensive. It includes a combination of taught courses and sustained research work. As per the guidelines laid down by the University Grants Commission (UGC), a student must complete three mandatory subjects (carrying 4 credits each), six optional subjects (carrying 3 credits each) and a dissertation (carrying 6 credits) as part of the one-year LL.M. programme. Since NALSAR has tailored its LL.M. for persons who wish to pursue a career in academics, it encourages students to explore their interests in a range of areas instead of anchoring on any one field too soon. We believe that no one can be a specialist without being a generalist. Since universities look for generalists rather than specialists in their fresh recruits, a very wide range of courses are offered to widen horizons and maximize learning.

In the same spirit of exploration and exposure, the University does not require postgraduate students to opt for a specialisation at the start of the programme. Instead they have to work towards a specialisation over the course of the academic year. A postgraduate student has to complete at least 15 credits of coursework in their preferred area of specialization in order to obtain the same. Subject to the availability of teaching expertise and the university rules on the minimum number of enrollments required for transacting a course, the University has offered optional courses which could lead to specialisations in the following areas:

- (i) Corporate and Commercial laws;
- (ii) Criminal Law;
- (iii) Environmental Law;
- (iv) Family Law;
- (v) Intellectual Property;
- (vi) International Trade and Business Law;
- (vii) Legal Pedagogy and Research and
- (viii) Public Law and Legal Theory

Applicants for the LL.M. programme are advised to opt for NALSAR if they have an interest in pursuing careers in teaching and research. NALSAR graduates are coveted by law schools all over the country as the university's programme of teaching assistantship provides live teaching opportunities. Students who are planning to appear for the civil services and judicial services examinations have also found the programme to be useful alongside their own preparatory efforts. Applicants must note that this programme has not been designed to facilitate recruitment in commercial law firms or business houses and such opportunities are pursued by students solely by their own efforts.

PhD. Programme (Full-time / Part-time):

NALSAR has a doctoral program which can be pursued either on a full time or part time basis. Applications can be made by persons who have completed a master's degree in law, social sciences, humanities or management. The Admissions Process consists of a written screening test (not required for those who have cleared the UGC-NET) followed by the submission of preliminary research proposals and an oral presentation of selected research proposals before the Research Board of the University. Candidates whose research proposals are approved by the Research Board are then registered. The application details along with the date of the written exam are made available on the NALSAR website on an annual basis.

2 year full-time M.B.A. programme:

In a pioneering move among the National Law Universities (NLUs), NALSAR started a two-year M.B.A. (Master's in Business Administration) programme in 2013 with the aim of integrating higher education in laws with management studies. This programme offers specializations in Corporate Governance, Court Management, Financial Services & Capital Markets, Sustainability and Innovation Management, Marketing Management, Human Resource Management and Business Regulations.

Programmes for Professionals:

To reach out to a larger section of the public, the University offers Masters and Post Graduate Diplomas in several areas that have practical relevance. The Directorate for Distance Education offers PG Diplomas in Patents Law; Media Laws; Cyber Laws; International Humanitarian Law; Animal Protection Laws; Alternative Dispute Resolution; Family Dispute Resolution; Aviation Law and Air Transport Management; Advanced Maritime Laws; Criminal Law and Forensic Science; Financial Services and Legislations; Drafting, Negotiation and Performance of Contracts; GIS & Remote Sensing Law; besides Masters programmes in Aviation Law and Air Transport Management; Security and Defence Laws; and Space & Telecommunication Laws. These courses are transacted through periodic contact classes with examinations held at the end of the academic year or the corresponding semester. They are open to graduates from disciplines other than law as well. Applications for admissions are invited on an annual basis. For the details, please visit: www.dde.nalsar.ac.in

Collaborations with Foreign Universities:

In recognition of the increasing importance of comparative and international dimensions of higher education, the University has signed Memorandums of Understanding (MoUs) with more than 30 foreign Universities located in the United States of America, Canada, United Kingdom, Germany, Switzerland, Australia, Israel, The Netherlands, Singapore, Brunei and Spain. These MoUs provide for the exchange of faculty members and students as well as the pursuit of collaborative research projects. These partnerships enable our students to develop a rich understanding of cultures from other parts of the world and consequently enhance the quality of discussions and scholarship at NALSAR. Approximately 20-25 students get the opportunity to study at foreign universities in every academic year.

Faculty:

NALSAR has a team of highly dedicated and competent faculty, comprising of a good mix of experienced scholars and young talent. The faculty has been drawn from prestigious national and international universities. Additionally, NALSAR has an 'open-door' policy for its alumni to supplement the teaching efforts of its faculty. In addition to teaching, faculty members are engaged in various research projects that are on the cutting edge issues of law and policy reform.

Research Centres:

To create support structures for advanced learning and creative scholarship, NALSAR has set up dedicated research centres whose activities are co-ordinated by senior faculty members. The broad mandate of these centres is to produce scholarly publications, policy recommendations and newsletters connected to these areas apart from organizing guest lectures and discussions to build awareness about them.

As mentioned above, there are several research projects that are anchored by faculty members.

NALSAR completed a three-year study titled 'Knowledge based Interventions to Strengthen the Realization of Socio-Economic Rights' for the Ford Foundation. Following this, the Ford Foundation has sanctioned another three-year project titled 'Incubating a Discourse for Cooperation, Contentment and Care to enable Justice for All'. NALSAR has submitted a report on 'Court Management Techniques for Improving the Efficiency of Subordinate Courts' and a report that provides a critical legal analysis on 'Transfer of Technology in the Indian Defence Sector: IPR Issues and Challenges' to the Defence Research and Development Organization (DRDO). With support from the Union Ministry of Law and Justice, NALSAR has undertaken a study on the considerations related to the access to legal education, quality of academic inputs and social relevance of the output. This is based on empirical evidence collected from a cross-section of faculties and departments that are offering legal education as a part of Central Universities, State Universities, Private Universities and Deemed Universities.

NALSAR is working closely with the Government of Telangana and Andhra Pradesh to revise various legislations and also to provide training for the State Officials of various departments for the improvement of governance. In collaboration with Landesa (RDI), NALSAR reviewed and revised nearly 112 Legislations relating to the Land and Revenue sector. NALSAR has prepared the draft State Rules for the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 and draft Telangana (Agricultural Produce and Livestock) Market (Amendment) Rules, 2016 for the State of Telangana. For the State of Andhra Pradesh NALSAR has drafted the Land Acquisition (Rehabilitation and Resettlement) Bill 2016 and the Andhra Pradesh Skill Development Bill, 2016. Presently University is in the process of reviewing and revising the Land Laws for the State of Andhra Pradesh.
