ENVIRONMENTAL LAW & PRACTICE REVIEW

CALL FOR PAPERS ‘12 (Vol. 2)

ABOUT THE JOURNAL
The Environmental Law & Practice Review is an initiative by the S.P. Chatterjee Centre for Environmental Law Studies, NALSAR University of Law which is established to serve as a forum for deliberation and debate of various issues relating to the environment and the law. The journal which is incidentally India’s only student run journal devoted to the discourse on environmental law is envisaged by the Society as an important part of its mandate of encouraging scholarship in environmental law and policy. We seek to foster environmental discourse and encourage dialogue in what has emerged as an issue of considerable impact in recent times. Students are especially encouraged to write for the journal and contribute to the discussion and debate on contemporary legal, political and policy matters relating to the environment.

ABOUT THE JOURNAL

The Environmental Law and Practice Review (ELPR) is the only Indian Student-run journal committed solely to the developments and trends that characterize Environmental Law. ELPR publishes articles on a variety of issues in natural resources law, environmental policy, law and economics and other such allied topics pertinent to Environmental law. We accept submissions from students, academics, practitioners, activists or other writers throughout the year. The journal is backed by a six member student Editorial Board and an Advisory Panel comprising distinguished personalities such as Hon’ble Justice Kuldip Singh, Dr. Vandana Shiva, Founder, Navdanya, Shyam Divan, Senior Advocate at the Supreme Court of India, Dr. Sejal Worah, Program Director WWF, India, Hon’ble Justice Christopher Weeramantry, former Vice President of the International Court of Justice, Prof. Wil Burns of Santa Clara University and Mr. Nigel Howorth, Partner at Clifford Chance. Following a first successful issue of the Journal, in continuance of our endeavor to encourage legal literature and participation of students in academic discourse, we bring you the second issue of the Journal slated for publication in 2012.

PUBLICATION POLICY

The ELPR accepts contributions in the form of Articles, Essays, Notes and Comments. The ELPR firmly believes in the importance of originality of ideas and therefore any material submitted to the Journal should not have been published elsewhere or be under consideration at any other publication. Joint authorship is permitted and there is no specific cap on the number of authors of a work. This policy is specially designed in order to encourage non law, policy oriented works and those involving empirical and statistical analysis. Plagiarism in any form shall result in instant rejection of the submission. The decision of the Board of Editors in this matter is final and binding. The Editorial Board of the ELPR shall not be responsible for any material that is libelous or scandalous and the author shall be deemed to have obtained the permission of the referred author in case the work is unpublished.

COPYRIGHT POLICY

The copyright in the contributions accepted for publication therein shall vest jointly with the contributor and the ELPR. Any person desiring to use the ELPR’s material for educational purposes, research or private study can do so with prior written permission of the Editorial Board.

INDEMNIFICATION POLICY

All contributors by submitting any contributions towards the ELPR hereby consent to indemnify NALSAR University of Law, Hyderabad and the ELPR from and against all claims, suits and consequences based on any claim of copyright infringement/unauthorized use/violation of any right which may arise as a result of their contribution being published in the ELPR.
SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

All submissions must contain an abstract of not more than 300 words. It is recommended that contributors follow the submissions guidelines below.¹

1. ARTICLES

An article may be an exposition of lacunae prevailing in contemporary laws of any country, a comparative study of different laws, or the publishing of research data and analysis from the area of environmental sciences and law. Though from the above it may seem that only articles engaging in current contemporary themes are invited, pure theoretical works too are welcome. It is advisable that the article have a theme/ a core argument around which the paper and literature is mold. The author is expected to make a comprehensive study of the subject and offer a fresh innovative solution in the area that he/she has engaged with. An article should not be more than 10,000 words.

2. Essay

An essay as opposed to an article is more concise and succinct in scope and engages in a contemporary problem in the field of environmental sciences and law without indulging in excessive theorizing. The beauty of a good essay lies in the ability of the author to put forward original arguments, observations and criticisms without compromising on brevity. Moreover, an essay ideally should focus on a legal debate, interpretation of law(s), a novel/ genuine approach to a problem. It should essentially be a concrete and logical manuscript built around a specific/ particular predicament. In other words, the norm is specificity rather than generality. An essay should not be more than 6,000 words.

3. Case Comment/ Legislative Critique & Notes

The author may choose to critique an existing legislation which may be an Act, Regulation, Rule, Scheme, Policy, Guideline, etc. In the alternative the author may also critique and analyze a bill which is tabled before the Parliament of any country. A case comment requires a thorough analysis of the aspects of the legislation and the consequences the change/ amendment would entail before and after its implementation (if there is one being suggested by the author). A case comment/legislative critique should not be more than 3500 words.

4. Book Review

A book review shall basically incorporate a complete analysis, and an overview of the same, along with special reference to the original author’s ideas, his writing style etc. Direct lifting of more than thirty words (i.e. a paragraph) from the book being reviewed is strictly discouraged and will result in immediate disqualification. The book being reviewed must pertain to core environmental science or environmental law. It must not be 3 years older than its date of issue/publication in the public domain. Although there is no strict word limit for a book review however, it should be terse and concise giving the reader a holistic review of the book.

¹ Please note that all word limits are exclusive of foot notes. Additionally, speaking footnotes are allowed.
